CAYAN & McABEE, of Calgary write to the Calgary Tribune that they have been gravely misrepresented in regard to the horse "Marksmen," which was ruled out as a ringer at New Orleans. They have been reinstated and propose to sue the New Orleans Association for damages.

The main line train of Monday last failed to connect with the C. & E. train at Calgary. The reason was an accident near Fortis station not far from Swift Current, which also caused the cancellation of the train from the west. A chinook wind had melted the snow in that district but it froze again and made almost a solid bed of ice on the rails in the small cuts. The express was being pulled by two locomotives and while passing through one of these cuts the front locomotive jumped the track, pulling after it the engine, the express car, the baggage car, the colonist and one first class coach. No damage was done to the rolling stock. The cars all remained on the road bed and were each hauled back again on to the rails. The train hands were not seriously injured.

Some time during the week before last two sons of John Whitford of Beaver lake, were out hunting about ten miles east of Mr. Whitford's place on the east side of Beaver lake, they came upon a ruined shanty in the woods with a cart standing near it. The shanty roof had been crushed in by some trees falling on it. On looking inside the door the boys saw an eight shooting rifle and a shot gun, some kettles and other utensils. Where the ridge pole of the roof had fallen down they noticed what appeared to have been a bed, but did not examine it, fearing that it might contain the remains of a human being. The accident to the shanty had evidently occurred a number of years ago and no living person had been near the place afterwards. They took the guns and reported the matter to their father. F. W. W. Fane, J. P. was informed of the affair and went out to investigate. The shanty is supposed to have been built by a white man who passed by Mr. Whitford's house in the fall of 1888 driving a horse and cart, and turned off from the lake at that point. He had passed the previous winter near Beaver lake wolfing, and it was supposed that he intended to pass the winter of 1888-9 in the same way. He had formerly worked on a survey party in the vicinity of Beaver lake and his name was known by some of the residents there. In 1889, a large bay horse with a bell on his neck was found by Indians south of Battle river and was supposed to have belonged to the wolf hunter. But the man was never seen or heard of after he left the vicinity of Whitford's in the fall of 1888. Whether he was killed by the falling in of the roof of the shanty and has lain there unburied all the years since, or died while away from his shanty, or left the country without taking his property with him will probably be decided by Mr. Fane's investigations.

W. P. HENRY, late with Rankin & Allan, Calgary is opening out a gents' furnishing establishment next door to Miss Charbonneau's millinery store, Jasper avenue.

RUEE ALLEN, humorist, and Chas. Kelly, vocalist, will arrive on to-night's train, and will give entertainments under the auspices of the Fire Brigade Band on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings in Robertson's Hall.

LOYAL TEMPERANCE LEGION.

The first open meeting of the Loyal Legion of Edmonton was held in Robertson's hall on Friday evening at 7.30. Thirty children, members of the legion, took part in the entertainment and the hall was well filled with interested spectators. The meeting was opened by scripture readings and prayer by Mrs. Bellamy, of the managing committee of the legion, and Mrs. McQueen, also of the managing committee, took the chair, stating that the meeting was to show to parents and friends the work of the children as members of the legion. The programme was as follows: Reading, by Mrs. Bellamy, "Two million boys wanted," showing that in the United States alone two million men became victims of alcohol in 30 years and that every fifth family furnished a victim; Welcome recitation, "Greeting" by Graham Walker; Marching chorus by the children, "Onward we are Marching" all the children of the legion taking part and carrying banners; Song, "When we are 21" by Alfred McLeod; Recitation, "A Cup of Cold Water," Miss Beniah Heath; The marching chorus was repeated by special request; Recitation, "When Grandma was young," Alice McDougall; Song, "Four Little Soldier Boys," Willie and Wallace Young, Graham Walker and Jas. G. McDougall; Recitation in concert, "Temperance girls," Misses Maud Lauder, Ethel Matheson, Mabel, Bertie and May McCauley and Ida Delang; chorus by the children, "The Coming Army," Recitation, "Which" by Willie and Elvira McKernan. Recitation, "The Conceited Grasshopper," by Clara Lauder. Motto song, "God is Love," by nine girls, and dialogue, "The Pledge," by thirteen girls and boys. Recitation, "The Letters," by Miss Maud McCauley, and dialogue, "The Lost Balance," by Miss Clara Lauder and Gracie Walker. Song, "The Drunkard's Child," Miss Eva Foster. Collection recitation by Alfred McLeod and collection to pay expenses followed. A vote of thanks was given the occupant of the chair and in response to a call a short address by Rev. D. G. McQueen. The doxology was then sung and Rev. Mr. McQueen pronounced the benediction. After the close of the meeting, at Mrs. Bellamy's request, a number of those present signed the temperance pledge. The piano accompaniment were played by Miss Phillips, and the programme was under the direction of Miss Osborne, of the managing committee. The excellence of the performance of the children reflects the very highest credit upon their instructors.

EDMONTON BULLETIN, MARCH 13TH, 1893.

CATTLE DISEASE.

The Calgary Herald is in trouble again. The BULLETIN is the cause of its grief. This paper it appears has been "doing its little utmost to help along the schemes of English cattle breeders for scheduling Canadian cattle in England," etc., etc., by calling upon the government to stamp out the cattle disease now existing in Peace river, and pointing out that the disease did not arise there but was brought in by cattle purchased in Calgary, and therefore that there should be a rigid examination made of herds from which these diseased cattle came. If to demand the stamping out of disease is to encourage quarantining against it there is sense in the Herald's argument; otherwise it is on the same level as the bulk of what the Herald has to say. It is not necessary to re-iterate the statements of fact already made in this paper as to the existence of a fatal contagious disease amongst the cattle of Peace River. The statements having been made it is the duty of the government for the protection of the public interest, to make enquiry on the ground. Until it does so the facts must stand as stated. To ease the mind of the Herald as to the BULLETIN's veracity, it may be well to mention that evidence is procurable right now in Edmonton as to the name of the pedigreed animal which was the first to show symptoms of the disease on its arrival in Peace river and afterwards died of the disease, as to the symptoms, and all other particulars. Further, it may not be out of place to call attention to the fact that something like a year ago the attention of the government was drawn to the fact of the existence of this disease. That the facts were then published in the English and United States papers, and that Dr. McEachren, government veterinary surgeon, reported that from the description of the symptoms received the disease was tuberculosis and not pleuro pneumonia as at first supposed. The BULLETIN therefore was not the author of the report, nor the cause of its being circulated. But when, after the matter had been before the government for a year and the disease was still allowed to spread, when as a result of that policy Canadian cattle had been quarantined by both Britain and the States and this had all occurred without the Herald—the professed champion of the cattle interests and apologist in general for the government—being able to do anything, the BULLETIN felt that it was time to take a new line and did so, with apparently the desired effect. As to the name of the disease, the BULLETIN has not said or insinuated that that it was pleuro pneumonia. It demanded an investigation to establish what the disease was. The established fact that it is contagious and fatal is enough to warrant the government in taking action to stamp it out. Supposing it to be tuberculosis, it is quite as contagious and as certainly fatal as pleuro pneumonia. It does not spread as quickly, however, but to balance that it is communicable to human beings, as pleuro pneumonia is not. In Denmark, animals affected with this disease are destroyed, and in Germany there is a system of insuring cattle against it, while Britain protects itself against tuberculosis as stringently as against pleuro pneumonia. While on this point it may be well to inform the Herald that there is something more damaging to business than a report of disease existing; that is an impression that disease not only exists but has been concealed. The editor of the Herald has the unique distinction of being a white man advocating the Chinese policy of concealing disease instead of curing it—that is taking for granted that he is a white man and not a native of the flowery empire.

At the recent session of the Northwest assembly a resolution was passed stating that the rates charged by the C. P. R. on coal and wheat are a hindrance to the prosperity of the country and calling the attention of the president of the company to the fact. On January 30th president Van Horne replied: "It has been the policy of the company to so adjust its grain rates as to afford the farmers throughout the Northwest, even in the most remote parts, nearly as much profit from their grain crops as is enjoyed by those in the districts more favored in points of distance. I enclose a comparison of rates from Winnipeg, Brandon, Regina, Broadview, Prince Albert, Calgary and Edmonton to the seaboard. I feel that I am quite safe in saying that the company derives no profit whatever from the transportation of wheat from Prince Albert, Edmonton and Calgary, and that, instead, it suffers an actual loss. If the rates, were to be graduated upwards in the usual manner, from the initial point, either the whole of the grain from west of Red River would have to be carried without profit, or the profitable raising of grain in the more distant sections, say beyond Regina, would be impossible." Regarding the transport of coal from the western part of the country to the eastern he says that the rates to Brandon and Winnipeg do not cover cost of transportation, and that to reduce the rate to say Regina and increase that to Winnipeg would be to decrease the output of the mines and by so much increase the price of coal at Regina even with the lower railway rate. He gives a table of the rates per 100 pounds on wheat from different points in the Northwest to Montreal. From Winnipeg it is 42c, Brandon 44c, Regina 47c, Prince Albert 50c, Edmonton 50c. Without attempting to discuss the arguments advanced by the very able president of the C. P. R. as to the benefits derived by the community at large from the scale of charges adopted by his company, and the dire catastrophes which would result if any serious reduction were made, the BULLETIN takes the opportunity to say that the scale of charges published entirely knocks the eye out of the argument so frequently made by Manitoba immigration agents against people going so far west as Edmonton, namely that as it costs 42 cents to carry a bushel of wheat from Winnipeg to Montreal it must cost twice as much to carry it from Edmonton to Montreal, because Edmonton is nearly twice as far away. The fact is that instead of wheat costing twice as much from Edmonton as from Winnipeg, it only costs 8c a bushel more. Taking for granted that wheat raising is the object of the farmer and admitting that the cost of transport is 8c a bushel more from Edmonton than from Winnipeg, it must be plain that this difference of 8c a bushel will not nearly make up to the Winnipeg farmer the increased cost of his fuel, fencing and building timber over what it would cost him in the Edmonton district, to say nothing of his hay, and water supply. While if his object is mixed farming the difference in favor of Edmonton over the most favored sections of Manitoba is so incomparably greater as to make the question of the slight difference in railroad rates of no consequence whatever. The question of coal rates, which is the great question in Manitoba, does not arise in the Edmonton district from the consumers' point of view. There is coal enough in this district to supply the world for a thousand years and it is so easily and universally procurable that it is cheaper fuel than the wood which abund, almost everywhere.
